The WARRIOR ALPHA DX INT is a hockey stick designed for intermediate players who are looking for the right balance of length, bend, and stiffness during practice and games. Measuring 57 inches and available in black, this model is designed for youth and club players who are already paying closer attention to shot feel, stick handling, and their preferred blade curve.

In the intermediate category in particular, the right fit makes a big difference, because technique and power development change noticeably. Choosing between the W03 and W28 helps you better tailor the blade to your playing style, whether your focus is on precise puck control, quick passes, or a comfortable shooting motion. With shaft flex options of 55, 63, and 70, you can also choose a stick that better suits your physique and skill level—which can make regular club play much more comfortable than using a shaft that's too stiff or too flexible.

Key factors in making your selection are the appropriate shaft stiffness and the correct blade orientation for your usual stick handling style.
