The WARRIOR ALPHA LX2 MAX INT is a composite hockey stick designed for youth and club players who are looking for a quick release during practice and games without compromising shot stability. The Saber Taper-2 design combines characteristics of both low-kick and mid-kick, thereby supporting both direct shots and controlled shots from slightly longer distances.

The design of this stick really shines during intense daily training: The shaft fits comfortably in the hand, providing a steady feel during quick puck receptions and tight plays along the boards. At the same time, the lightweight, sturdy material helps you maneuver the stick with agility. The lightweight blade core delivers the puck cleanly to the blade and provides direct feedback during passing and shooting.

The 55 stiffness and INT size are particularly well-suited for younger players transitioning to competitive hockey. When selecting a stick, be sure to choose the correct blade orientation and the desired curve (W03 or W28).
