The WARRIOR ALPHA LX2 PRO JR is a junior hockey stick designed for young players looking for a fast release with controlled shot performance during practice and games. The Saber Taper-2 design combines features of both low-kick and mid-kick, allowing shots to be both more powerful and more precise. This is complemented by a very lightweight, stable material and a blade core made of super-lightweight polymer, which noticeably enhances puck feel.

Product information

- Technology: Saber Taper-2 with features from both low-kick and mid-kick designs
- Shooting characteristics: hard shots with increased accuracy
- Blade core: super-lightweight polymer core for enhanced puck feel and direct shot contact
- Shaft shape: ergonomically shaped, concave
- Curvature: W03
- Hardness: 30 or 40
- Blade orientation: left or right
- Color: black

Especially in junior hockey, a balanced combination of feel, comfort, and clean power transfer quickly makes a difference. The concave shaft shape fits comfortably in the hand and aids in precise puck control, quick shots, and controlled passes. The overall lightweight feel supports young players even when they're doing many repetitions on the ice and need to maintain consistent technique.

When selecting a stick, it's worth considering the blade orientation, W03 curvature, and the appropriate stiffness (30 or 40) to ensure the stick matches the player's skill level and physical strength.
