Protection size-1: SR

WARRIOR LX PRO SR is a shoulder protector designed for regular senior-level hockey play. Especially during practice and games, it's important to have gear that protects the upper body without unnecessarily restricting movement in the shoulder area. The LX-PRO line is primarily aimed at players who want to be reliably equipped on the ice and who don't settle for basic, entry-level protective gear.

Shoulder pads in this category are particularly appealing to club players who are on the ice several times a week and are looking for a balanced combination of mobility and protection. In everyday hockey, it quickly becomes clear how important a proper fit is: When the shoulder pads sit securely against the body, stick handling, shoulder rotation, and movements along the boards feel more natural. This is especially noticeable when practices become more intense or the game gets more physical.

The range of senior sizes from S to XL helps ensure the shoulder pads fit snugly and sit comfortably under the jersey.
