Especially during regular club training, it's important to wear clothing that doesn't feel heavy and stays comfortably dry even during more intense sessions. That's exactly where this shirt shines: The raglan construction supports natural movement in the shoulders and arms, while the side slit provides more freedom during quick changes of direction. The longer back hem also ensures that the shirt stays securely in place even when you're moving. In black, it fits seamlessly into your daily training routine and pairs well with team uniforms.
