Clothing that works seamlessly with your movements is especially important during hockey practice. The side mesh panels allow more air to reach your body without restricting mobility, and the waistband can be easily adjusted with the drawstring. The zippered pockets are also practical for everyday club life when you need to safely stow small items on the way to practice. Thanks to the black design, these shorts pair effortlessly with team uniforms and practice tops.

To ensure the right fit, it's worth taking a quick look at the desired JR size, especially if the shorts will be worn over performance underwear or directly during intense training sessions.
