A well-fitting strap plays a crucial role, especially during longer sessions where pole technique needs to remain precise and consistent. It supports direct pole control and helps ensure that hand movements remain natural throughout the stride. The QC design is particularly appealing to club athletes and ambitious endurance athletes who don't want to deal with unnecessarily complicated equipment changes and value a simple, sport-specific solution.

For a comfortable fit, the selected size should match your hand and the pole system you're using.
