In indoor hockey and inline skating indoors, it's important to have a wheel that suits the surface and remains predictable during play. That's exactly where this 72-mm model comes in: Its size is ideal for setups that require a more compact, responsive ride. The medium-firm ride appeals to players who aren't looking for a wheel that's either extremely soft or particularly hard, but rather a balanced solution for training, working on technique, and regular sessions on indoor surfaces.

Before installation, it's worth taking a quick look at the appropriate wheel size for your frame and skate boot.
