Product information

- Target audience: Club players, teams, and coaches

In hockey, every second counts between shifts. A bottle with a spout therefore fits well into routines on the bench and in the arena when speed is essential and players need to stay focused on the game. The 800 ml capacity is a practical choice for regular practices and individual matches, while the BPA-free design ensures it's safe and suitable for sports use. A standardized bottle is also useful for coaches or entire teams in everyday club life because it fits seamlessly into existing routines.

If you're looking for a sports bottle for the bench, locker room, and training sessions, the 800 ml size is ideal for everyday use.
