These hockey floor panels create a clearly defined training area where technical drills, stickhandling, and passing can be organized in a controlled manner. In day-to-day club operations, this is particularly helpful when individual stations need to be set up quickly or areas need to be flexibly adapted to the available space. Thanks to the convenient square format, setting up, adding, and replacing individual elements remains manageable, whether in the weight room, the gym, or a separate Skills area.

When planning larger training areas, it's worth taking a moment to check the number of pieces needed against the available space.
