The TRUE HZRDUS PX INT is a very lightweight composite hockey stick designed for performance-oriented youth and club players who are looking for a responsive feel during quick shots and direct puck delivery. Weighing 345 g, with a low kick point and right-handed blade orientation in the INT version, this model is clearly designed for players who actively load the stick and want to generate maximum shot speed in a short amount of time.

- Technology: RESFLO for significant weight reduction while maintaining consistent laminate structure
- Shooting characteristics: optimized low kick point for quick release and explosive response
- Blade construction: Tri Rib Tech with rib arrangement tailored to impact points
- Performance benefits: a more stable blade for hard shots and one-timers
- Weight: 345 g
- Curvature: TC4
- Hardness: 55
- Length: 57 inches, right-handed, INT, black

On the ice, this is particularly noticeable in tight game situations: The stick loads effortlessly, releases the puck quickly, and remains stable in the blade even when taking high-speed shots. For INT players in particular—who work on their shooting technique and timing during regular practice—the combination of low weight, a low kick point, and a stable blade construction is especially appealing. The TC4 curve is well-suited for controlled puck handling and shooting.

When selecting a stick, the INT size, 57-inch length, right-handed blade orientation, and Flex 55 should match your height and shooting style.
