Protective paint: black

Protection size-1: SR

Body protection size: L

The CCM TACKS XF SR Shoulder Pad in black, size L, is designed for senior players looking for flexible, form-fitting protection during practice and games. Especially during direct contact, close-range shots, and intense one-on-one battles, a design that provides extensive coverage without unnecessarily restricting movement is essential.

- Technology: floating sternum and spine shields with compression-molded HD foam and D3O
- Shoulder area: JDP-injected shoulder caps with exposed foam
- Collarbone: floating protection with PE plastic cover
- Bicep protection: Reinforced plastic protection with an adjustable strap system
- Fit: ADPTFIT straps and removable, adjustable padding
- Ventilation: Air channels in the torso
- Inner construction: sweat-wicking Zotefoam design
- Model: Senior SR, body protector size L, color black

The balance of the individual protection zones makes this model particularly appealing for club players with a powerful, direct style. The floating elements in the upper body support mobility in tight game situations, while the shoulder, collarbone, and bicep areas are designed to withstand the stresses of adult hockey. Added to this is a fit that can be finely adjusted to the body using straps and adjustable padding—a factor that often matters more on the ice than padding thickness alone.

When it comes to shoulder pads, it's best to choose a size that fits snugly and doesn't slip or cause pressure points under the jersey.
