In junior sports, it's often not just about protection, but also about a fit that moves with you. That's exactly where this model comes in: The split-panel design keeps the area around the elbow flexible, while the combination of dense foam and additional pads provides targeted reinforcement for high-impact zones. This is especially useful during regular training, when you don't want to be constantly readjusting your gear. The quick-drying inner lining also helps with this, staying more comfortable after intense sessions and keeping the material clean.

For a snug fit, choose junior size S so that the protector fits tightly without restricting elbow flexion.
