Especially in tight game situations in front of the goal, along the boards, or in the line of a shot, it's crucial that a shin guard not only provides protection but also blends seamlessly with the rest of your gear. For years, the TACKS line has been synonymous in hockey with a game-ready, rugged design. As a result, this model is a good fit for club players who are looking for a reliable foundation in their protective gear for both practice and games, without having to experiment with different sizes.

Length is an important factor in selecting the right size: 15 inches (38 cm) should match your leg length and the rest of your gear so that the knee and shin areas fit snugly.
