Especially for children's training, it's important to have gear that's clearly recognizable as a team uniform and allows for full range of motion during practice. A sublimation jersey is ideal for regular use when groups on the field need to be quickly identified and a uniform look is required. The crocodile design adds a playful touch to training without losing sight of the athletic purpose. In yellow, the uniform stands out in a team setting and is easy to use, for example, in youth training sessions, school hockey, or seasonal club kits.

For children, it's worth taking a quick look at the appropriate size S to ensure the jersey fits comfortably during practice and can be worn conveniently over other sportswear.
