Especially in youth sports, it's important to have clothing designed for regular training sessions that complements the team's overall look. A sublimated training jersey is an ideal choice for this purpose because the design is printed directly onto the fabric, making it an integral part of the jersey's distinctive appearance. This makes this model particularly appealing to clubs, coaches, and parents looking for clearly defined children's training gear. The S size is designed for children who prioritize a proper, athletic fit without unnecessarily restricting their range of motion.

To help you choose, here's a quick guide to children's sizes to ensure the uniform fits comfortably during practice.
