Especially for goalies, the bag's size makes a noticeable difference, because shin guards, pants, chest protectors, and glove and stick hands take up significantly more space than field player equipment. This bag's large capacity makes transporting everything a breeze and is ideal for club goalies who regularly travel with a full set of gear. A roomy bag is also practical for youth players when they need to quickly pack up their gear between the rink, locker room, and storage area.

Before making your selection, it's worth taking a quick look at the actual size of your own goalie gear to ensure the 44-inch size meets your personal packing needs.
