For club players and teams in particular, what matters most in a goal net is a familiar design that integrates seamlessly into game play. The Cateye design is one of the most well-known styles in hockey and is often chosen when a classic setup is desired. The double-bar construction fits into this category, making the cage a practical choice for regular use on the field or in the arena.

Before making your selection, it's worth taking a quick look at compatibility with your existing helmet, as the shape and mounting method may vary depending on the helmet model.
