INTERHOCKEY SOFT PUCK is a soft hockey puck in black, which is particularly popular for training and drills that require a reduced level of hardness. Especially when learning basic technical skills, in school hockey, or during relaxed passing and stick-handling drills, it's important to have a puck that can be played with control and makes training a little less intense.

Product information

In everyday training, a soft puck is particularly well-suited for situations where clean contact, smooth puck control, and a well-paced game are more important than the hardness of a competition puck. This is ideal for beginners, schools, and clubs when laying the foundation or training groups with varying skill levels together. This softer puck variant also fits well into coordination exercises outside of intense game play.

While a soft puck does not always replace the hard version for the standard feel of a regular game, it serves as a useful complement to the equipment during training sessions.
