FOX SMALL PLAYING FIELD is a compact playing field for interhockey and is particularly well-suited for situations where training drills, technical exercises, or small-sided games need to be clearly delineated. The small design creates a well-organized playing area and fits well in environments where efficient use of limited space is essential.

- Product Type: Small playing field
- Applications: Interhockey, training, and game formats
- Version: small
- Model reference: Small Playing Field 9400
- Training benefits: clearly defined field boundaries for structured exercises

Product information

Especially in everyday club activities, school sports, or youth training sessions, a smaller playing field helps organize drills efficiently. Passing routes, transition moments, and tight game situations can be specifically trained in a limited space without the session feeling chaotic. This size is also practical for coaches setting up multiple stations simultaneously, as it allows for better use of available gym or training areas.

When making your selection, it's worth taking a quick look at the available space and the planned training setup to ensure the playing field suits the group and the type of drill.
