The WARRIOR ALPHA LX SR is a hockey stick designed for players who are looking for a balanced combination of durability and precise puck control during regular practice. The Alpha line is known for its direct feel, and in this SR version—with a right-handed blade orientation, a stiffness rating of 95, and a W03 flex—the model is designed for stronger players who prefer a clearly tuned flex.

- Technology: 122 construction made of standard carbon
- Construction: Designed for enhanced durability and longevity
- Feel: perfectly balanced blade for precise puck control
- IntendedUse: Ice hockey practice and games
- Curvature: W03
- Hardness: 95
- Stick type: Right-handed
- Length: 63 inches

On the ice, the well-balanced blade really stands out: passes can be received with precision, and you maintain a solid feel for the puck when shooting. Especially in everyday club play, when a stick has to endure many sessions, the sturdy carbon construction is a key feature. This makes this model a good fit for players looking for a reliable stick that can handle repeated stress without sacrificing precise handling.

When choosing a stick, the most important factor is finding the right combination of blade orientation, stiffness, and length to match your playing style and height.
