The CCM HT 920 TACKS SR in Navy is an ice hockey helmet designed for intense use during practice and games, when cooling and a snug fit are just as important as protection. Especially in everyday club play, when the intensity and pace increase, the well-designed ventilation system quickly makes a difference.

Product information

- Technology: AER-TEC thermoregulation with ventilation openings and air channels
- Construction: 3D-printed NEST TECH structure to support air circulation
- Protection system: R3FLEX 3-in-1 foam for comfort and dynamic response to high- and low-energy impacts
- Interior: AER-TEC TotalDri sweatband for breathability and moisture management
- Adjustment: ADPTFIT 360 system, tool-free one-step adjustment
- Fit: Slim, close-to-the-head shape
- Size: S / SR
- Color: Navy

In everyday hockey, you need a helmet that doesn't pinch, stays comfortable even during longer sessions, and noticeably wicks away heat better than basic models. That's exactly where this model excels: Fresh air is directed through the helmet, while the sweatband absorbs moisture and maintains a consistent level of comfort. Added to this is the all-around adjustment system, which makes fine-tuning quick and easy before practice or between shifts.

To ensure the right fit, the helmet size should match your head shape and desired fit in size S/SR.
