In everyday hockey, protective gear isn't just about the actual area of protection—it's also about how it feels under the rest of your equipment. A deluxe version is a great fit for female players who train regularly and value a well-designed addition to their protective gear. The women's groin guard is designed for the pelvic area and provides support where quick changes of direction, running, and game situations near the goal leave little room for distraction.

The combination of body protector size M and protective gear size SR should complement the rest of your gear and provide the desired fit.
