WARRIOR LX PRO JR is a shoulder protector for youth players, designed for young hockey players who value not only protection but also freedom of movement during practice and games. The JR version, available in black and in body armor

Product information

size L, clearly positions this model in the junior category and pairs well with gear that should fit snugly and not get in the way on the ice.

- Product Type: Shoulder Pads
- Model: LX PRO JR
- AgeGroup: JR
- Size: L
- Color: black
- IntendedUse: Ice hockey training and games
- Protection area: Shoulders and upper body

In junior hockey in particular, shoulder pads must move with the player on the ice without constantly drawing attention to themselves. That's exactly where the practical value of a well-chosen model like this lies: The upper body remains protected during one-on-one battles, changes of direction, and during normal training routines, while stick handling and skating movements aren't unnecessarily restricted. For parents and club players, this is a sensible consideration when looking for junior-appropriate gear that fits into the regular hockey routine.

To ensure a proper fit, junior size L should be coordinated with the other protective elements on the upper body.
