Sturdy base layer pants really make a difference, especially during quick changes of direction, low-stance skating, and intense one-on-one play. The combination of compression, a ventilated waistband, and a well-designed cup holder ensures a neat, comfortable fit under your gear without the need for constant readjustment. This is particularly appealing to performance-oriented field players looking for a reliable foundation under their hockey pants during practice and games.

To ensure the right fit, we recommend choosing your usual SR size, keeping in mind the desired snug fit.
