In hockey, the neck area is particularly sensitive; at the same time, the equipment must neither restrict movement nor distract the player while skating or during physical play. This is exactly where this model fits in: high cut resistance combined with a fit designed for extended time on the ice. This makes it particularly appealing to club players and ambitious adults who prioritize well-designed protective gear during practice and on game day.

When choosing a size, consider the desired fit around the neck. The SR senior version is available in sizes S through XL.
