A shaft like this is especially well-suited for club players who aren't just looking for any standard stick setup. Especially during regular training sessions, the right flex makes a clear difference because passes, puck control, and shots respond more naturally to your own timing. The SR size is designed for senior players and is suitable for those who already use their preferred blade and a specific stick setup.

The key to making the right choice is the combination of the senior size and the desired flex. This is the 75-flex version.
