Product information

Protection size-1: JR

CCM TACKS XR JR shoulder pads are designed for close-fitting hockey at the youth level and combine extensive coverage with noticeable mobility. This is especially helpful during regular practice and games, when protection shouldn't come at the expense of mobility.

- System: Max Coverage ASD Design with molded Zotefoam® elements
- Protection Area: Extended coverage with good impact absorption
- Construction: FlexMotion with injection-molded shoulder caps
- Technology: Additional D3O® protection in the chest area
- Ventilation: targeted air circulation and AER-TEC ventilation system
- Lining: Breathable for a drier feel
- Agegroup: JR
- Size: M or L

On the ice, it's often a matter of balancing protection during contact with freedom of movement in tight game situations. That's exactly where this Tacks model comes in: The shoulder construction remains flexible, while the chest and shoulder areas are designed to withstand the stresses of youth hockey. The ventilation helps maintain a more comfortable climate under the gear, which is especially noticeable during intense sessions and back-to-back practices. This makes the model particularly suitable for ambitious juniors and for parents who prioritize not only coverage but also comfort when choosing equipment.

For a proper fit, the JR size should be chosen so that the shoulder pads rest correctly on the shoulders and the chest protector stays securely in place against the body.
