In hockey, undergarments must fit properly without getting in the way during quick changes of direction, when accelerating, or while moving. That's exactly where these shorts come in: The garter belt is part of the classic gear combination and helps keep hockey socks in place, while the groin guard is worn in a sporty, compact design. This is particularly appealing to players in training and match situations who prefer a clear, familiar setup for their gear.

When selecting these shorts, the most important factor is choosing the right senior size so that they fit snugly against the body and can be worn neatly under the rest of your hockey gear.
