Product information

As part of the stick equipment, the strap is one of those small components that often go unnoticed on the field until they no longer fit properly. A new strap helps keep the stick steady in the upper grip area, especially during quick changes of direction, tight ball control, and repeated stress in indoor or field hockey. This is especially useful for club players who use their sticks regularly and value a comfortable grip.

Before making a selection, it's worth taking a quick look at your existing stick setup to ensure the model and attachment method are compatible with your own stick.
