In everyday club life, accessories that work without any hassle are especially important. A shaker of this size remains easy to handle, doesn't take up unnecessary space, and is well-suited for sessions before or after ice time as well as for indoor training. For players who want to carry drinks or powder portions separately from the rest of their gear, a 500-ml size is often a convenient everyday option.

For those who regularly carry pre-mixed drinks on the go, the 500-ml size usually provides a manageable amount for training and short sessions.
