The CCM HT 920 TACKS SR RED is an ice hockey helmet designed for senior players who are looking for a modern combination of cooling, fit, and a well-engineered protective structure during practice and games. Especially during intense sessions on the ice, it really makes a difference when a helmet not only fits securely but also noticeably better wicks away heat and moisture.

In everyday hockey, what matters most is how evenly a helmet fits and whether it remains comfortable even during long periods on the ice. That's exactly where this model excels: Ventilation isn't limited to individual vents but is designed as a continuous system. Added to this is an interior construction that better manages air and moisture, helping to keep the helmet feeling fresh. This is especially important for club players who train several times a week and need gear that can be quickly adjusted and maintains a consistent fit.

To make the right choice, check the appropriate senior sizes: S, M, or L.
