For club players, coaches, and teams in particular, one thing matters most when it comes to accessories: they should be easy to use in everyday situations. A webbing strap of this width quickly covers the racket handle and can also be put to good use on equipment when something needs to be bundled or secured. The 9.14 m roll is a practical length for the locker room, equipment bag, or team case. In hockey, where equipment is often used several times a week, this type of tape is simply part of the basic gear.

When making your selection, it's especially helpful to consider the desired width and color for the specific application.
