The FATPIPE NEXT-G 34 is a floorball stick designed for youth players and those looking for a shorter stick. With a shaft length of 65 cm and a left-handed blade orientation, this model is well-suited for making those first clean ball contacts during practice and for controlled movements during games. The multichrome color scheme adds an eye-catching touch without compromising the stick's athletic character.

Especially for younger players or when switching to a shorter stick, what matters most is a stick that handles naturally and provides a direct feel for the ball and movement. The Flex 34 places the stick in a range that remains easy to handle at this skill level. This allows for successful passes, dribbles, and simple shots with a balanced combination of control and feedback. This length also serves as a clear guide for schools, clubs, or parents looking for a floorball stick of the right size.

An important factor in the selection process is the correct blade orientation: "left" means the blade is designed for a left-handed playing style.
