With a blade in particular, it quickly becomes apparent during play just how precisely the ball can be controlled and how cleanly passes come off the blade. At Exel, the AIR model represents a lighter design within the blade category, which is particularly noticeable during quick movements along the boards, when playing in tight spaces, and during repeated shots. This is particularly appealing for club players and ambitious young players who want to fine-tune the feel of their game through the blade rather than replacing the entire stick.

It's important to choose the correct side: select left or right depending on your usual blade orientation.
